Beverley Taylor Sorenson Arts Learning Program

Beverley Taylor Sorenson
(1924-2013)

Beverley Taylor Sorenson, a tireless champion for the arts, began developing an integrated arts teaching model in 1995. Beverley collaborated with arts education professionals, state organizations, and higher education institutions to design an effective model, and in 2008, the Utah State Legislature recognized her efforts by adopting the model her team developed and naming the initiative the Beverley Taylor Sorenson Arts Learning Program.

To develop a strong and lasting foundation, Beverley and the Sorenson Legacy Foundation have committed more than $50 million to the program. This includes establishing higher education programs at Brigham Young University, Dixie State University, Southern Utah University, the University of Utah, Utah State University, Weber State University and Westminster College to train those who teach art to elementary school children.
